

Bahamas Reconstruction Project

More than two years following the destruction caused by hurricane Dorian, residents of the Bahama are still trying to recover. The damage was severe. While many of the home owners have made progress in their repairs, others like “Mrs. Jones” have not been so fortunate. An older, single woman on limited income is struggling to get by. After two years, she still has no working toilet, no electricity, and the roof still leaks after an unscrupulous contractor only repaired the front half her roof, took the money and left. She broke into tears as the pastor prayed for her.

Still leaks-only half a job done

Water damage is pervasive throughout her house
Mold is a real health treat for many residents with leaky roofs.
